On Tuesday, the family of the late Whitney Houston filed a claim against 21st Century Fox and the NFL over its settlement of a wrongful-death lawsuit stemming from the entertainer's death in a hotel room in February 2012. That claim is part of a larger $30 billion dollar wrongful death suit brought by the estate of the American singer's mother, Cissy Houston, who has also joined the action. The estate's suit, filed on June 7 in the Los Angeles Superior Court, demands that the NFL and Fox recognize and accept responsibility for the costs and injuries suffered by her family, and provide them with hundreds of millions of dollars in compensation. "The NFL and Fox have entered into a secret, no-fault, 60 million dollar settlement with Whitney's family," the complaint says, referring to the $60 million payment that was made to the estate in late 2012, for which, the NFL and Fox declined to comment. 21st Century Fox owns the National Football League, and has a majority share in the broadcast rights in the United States and Canada for its sport. If any of the claimants in the initial suit holds an individual ticket to a Super Bowl game, it will get added to that claim. The claim notes that the defendants have as yet "failed and refused" to pay out any of the money they agreed to pay to the Houston family, saying that they "continue to cut corners, delay and attempt to avoid responsibility in the Whitney Houston matter
